

ADRF NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

The Australian Dental Research Foundation is the major source of funding for dental research in Australia today.

In the past year, the Foundation has funded numerous research projects and also supported student research through 14 Undergraduate Research Grants, one Trebitsch Grant and one Colin Cormie Scholarship.

Since 1970, the Foundation has supported nearly 500 research projects and, since 1980, more than 300 student grants.

This year's amount committed to research grants is estimated at $300,000, with a cumulative total of $2,640,681. This is why we continue to ask for your financial support, over and above the contributions you make when you purchase the Foundation's Appointment Books. We want to finance many more projects, but if the Foundation is to continue to grow and be of service to the dental profession of the future, it needs your support now. Donations are tax deductible.

 Research is the key to our profession's future.
